BURLINGTON DEFEATED BY HIGH SCHOOL

Local Football Team Outpays Wisconsin Eleven on Muddy Field

LONG PASS DECIDES GAME

On a field that resembled a sea of mud Antioch defeated Burlington high school 7 to 2, at Burlington last Saturday. It was a poor game to watch due to the fact that neither team was able to make much headway on the heavy field, but both teams must be given credit for the few fumbles made with such conditions to contend with.

The first half was a listless one neither team being able to get first down very often and the forward passes that were tried proved of no avail on account of the heavy and slippery ball. In the rushing, Antioch was far better than Burlington, making twice the amount of first downs that Burlington made.

The third period proved the undoing of Burlington, when after a series of rushes, Capt. Haley stepped back and sent the ball hurrying over the heads of the Burlington players into the hands of George Keulman for one of the prettiest forward passes seen this year in Antioch football. Keulman caught the ball on Burlington's 30-yard line and sent it to a man between him and the goal line.

The Antioch players who were in the line of the play were all in the line of the play. The Antioch players who were in the line of the play were all in the line of the play. The Antioch players who were in the line of the play were all in the line of the play.

To cap a climax of this play the referee pulled a one-act farce of his own by taking the ball out to the 20-yard line and presenting the ball to Burlington, when in reality it should have been Antioch's ball on her 30-yard line. This farce almost turned into a tragedy when Burlington managed to get the ball to the 3-yard line, but the whistle blew for the end of the game before Burlington had an opportunity to try to put it over. The score:

Antioch	Burlington
Sheehan	R. E.
Hook	R. T.
Gray	C. G.
Herman	C. G.
Gray	C. G.
Keulman	L. E.
Haley	Q.
Chinn	R. H.
Keulman	L. H.
Ames	F.

Touchdown—G. Keulman, Goals from touchdown—Haley. Safety—Haley.

Tomorrow (Friday) Antioch will travel to Libertyville to meet the fast high school team. The Libertyville team Antioch swamped some weeks ago and the game tomorrow at Libertyville at their best—will be a regular in the line-up their good battle is expected.

Progress Being Made on Rosing's Garage

Progress is being made on addition of the Antioch Sales Service Station, which will, when completed, increase the floor space to approximately 12,000 feet. This will eliminate the congestion, entering in front and will exit rear. With this new addition efficient service will be rendered. There has been an increase in the year of 1921 of approximately 3% over the year 1920, and these increased facilities, still in progress, are expected to increase of business is expected for 1922. Mr. Rosing feels the trade is entitled to and expects quick and efficient service.

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, November 21, 1901

On Wednesday evening at about 7:45 a cry of fire was heard and upon investigation proved to be the dwelling house owned by Williams Bros., and occupied by John J. Porter and family situated north of the school house.

Wayne Pullen arrived home from a few weeks trip in the west on Monday.

J. C. James, Jr., received notice from the state board of health that he had successfully passed the examination of embalmers held in Chicago last October.

The partnership heretofore existing between Albert Hoyt and James Vickers has been severed, Mr. Hoyt having sold his interest to Gideon Thayer of this place.

Chase Webb and Chas. H. Barber were Chicago passengers on Monday.

The following committee has been selected to choose the most popular gentleman for Mrs. P. B. Campbell's Thanksgiving ball: J. J. Burke, Charles Powles, Chase Webb, Mr. Lewin, Lake Villa; Krum Blunt, Grass Lake; Mr. Cleveland, Grayslake. The committee to select the most beautiful lady as queen is: Mrs. Cary Hook, Mrs. Mathews, Miss Lottie Haycock, Mrs. Ernest Simons, Mrs. Clifford Nelson, Lake Villa; Miss Kelly, Russell, and Miss Schlax, Salem.

Last Wednesday being Mr. M. M. Burke's birthday, about thirty-five of his friends gave him a surprise party. Games and music were features of the evening and all had a most enjoyable time. Supper was served at 12:30.

Henry Herman, of Highwood, was calling on friends in Antioch on Tuesday.

Old Resident Uncovers Antioch News 33 Years Old

Out of Antioch's oldest residents who has been interested in our new feature, "Twenty Years Ago," was good enough to bring in the Antioch Weekly News, published July 27, 1888.

The paper was on a single sheet 9x12 and printed on one side. It consists of a few local items and a single story of the death of a little Chicago girl whose uncles, John, Joseph and Charles Kelly, were Antioch residents.

Among the local items appear: Our dentist, George R. Olcott, makes best teeth for $10.00. Fills teeth for 50 cents.

In order to reduce her stock for the fall trade Miss Addie Schaffer offers for sale her entire stock of spring and summer goods at prices below cost.

Miss Anna Babor Wins Story Contest

Out of a collection of over fifty titles for Frank J. Dedie's unnamed story that appeared in The Antioch News two weeks ago, Miss Anna Babor won first choice. "God's Eleventh Hour Warning" was the title selected by Mr. Dedie as the most appropriate for his story.

Mr. Dedie stated there was any number of excellent titles among those received at the News office and much time was needed before a choice could be made.

St. Ignatius' Notes

Next Sunday, the Sunday next before advent, there will be two celebrations of the holy communion at 8 and 11 o'clock. The Rev. Prof. Norwood, of the Western Theological seminary will be the celebrant and will preach at the later service. All members of St. Ignatius' church are requested to make their communion at this time. At the late service there will be a solo by Mrs. Hughes, of Antioch. Choir practice on Saturday evening at 7:30. Everyone is invited to attend these services.

Property Owners Adopt 54-Foot Street Through the Business Section

At the adjourned meeting of the board Tuesday night at the town hall held for the purpose of hearing property owners on the proposed levels and grading of the new road at the business section of the town resolutions were passed to adopt the levels as drawn up by County Engineer Russell with the adoption of a 54-foot street, leaving a sidewalk of approximately 10 feet through the town.

The men who assembled at the meeting were evidently there for business as there was an entire absence of lengthy speeches, all questions being asked direct to the point and answered by Mr. Russell by a few words.

The meeting was called to order by President King and the business of the meeting taken up. Mr. Russell was called on to give details as to the proposed levels, after which questions were called for. The next hour was spent in the asking of questions and answering at the expiration of which time Chairman King called the roll of property owners along the business section on the question of grading and the width of the road. The roll as called with the response as to width of road required, all present being in favor of the grading follows:

Rosing, 57; Pacini, 54; State Bank, 54; Somerville, 54; Capek, absent; Webb, 54 or 56; Keulman, 54; Bock, 54; C. Webb, 54; Thayer, 54; Herman, 54; Nabor, 56; Morley, absent; Felter, absent; Osmond, absent; Chinn, absent; Sabin, 54; John Brogan, 54 or 56; Klein, absent.

Celebrate 62nd Anniversary of Their Wedding

Wednesday of this week, Nov. 16, marked the sixty-second wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell D. Emmons of this village and the event was celebrated by a twelve o'clock dinner given in their honor, at the home of their daughter, Mrs. L. B. Grice. Covers were laid for twelve and a most enjoyable day was spent by all.

Mr. Emmons came to Antioch in 1842 and has been a resident of this place ever since. For many years he conducted a general store in this village and for thirteen years he served as postmaster. He reached the good old age of ninety-one years on the 23rd day of October and is still as active as a man of seventy.

Mrs. Emmons will be eighty-three years of age in February and still takes an active part in household duties.

This elderly couple can number their friends by the score and it is the wish of all that they may be permitted to celebrate several more anniversaries together.

World's Record Trotter Trained at Libertyville

Peter Manning, the greatest trotter of all time, made a world's record mile in 1:57 3/4 at Lexington Ky., recently. This wonderful horse was developed by Harry Putman, one of Libertyville's popular race horse drivers. He was sold at Lexington two years ago as a three year old by his owner, W. M. Wright, president of the Calumet Baking Powder company, at a record price for a horse of that age. Mr. Wright made an offer of $50,000 recently, to repurchase this horse, but was refused.

Harry Putman is wintering a stable of more than a dozen prominent horses and colts, owned by W. M. Wright and H. O. Reno of Chicago, among which are "Ralph Cobb," a coming pacer, and "Alice Forbes," a mare who won four straight races this fall, finishing at Lexington with a record of 2:09 1/2. Harry will open his 1922 campaign at North Randall, Ohio, next June. His friends are wishing that he may again drive Peter Manning, or better still, develop a faster horse.

Mrs. Ferdinand Stenzel

Died at Wilmet Today

Mrs. Ferdinand Stenzel of Wilmet passed away this morning, Thursday, November 17 at her home after a lingering illness. Mrs. Stenzel was born in Germany. She was married Feb. 24, 1880. She leaves three children, Mrs. Fred Schenning of Silver Lake, Ill. and Otto Stenzel of Wilmet. Funeral will be held Saturday, with interment at Wilmet. Services will be held at the Lutheran church.

Radtke, 54; Williams store, 54; King, 54; Morley, absent; Klein, absent; Dida, absent; Veigel, absent.

Mr. Christian was asked to make a report on continuing of water main on South Main street.

The paving of the Main street was another question disposed of in short order, the property owners deciding on a 24 foot slab of concrete through the center of the street with a paving of 10 feet of brick on either side.

Mr. Voss gave a report on the outcome of the Alley committee's investigation on the proposed road from Johnson street to Depot street. He said that those interested and interviewed were in favor of a 48 or 50 foot road. There are two or three property owners of this section to be interviewed.

The next question brought up was in regard to water connections on the Main street. Testimony given showed that the iron pipes laid were a failure and action was taken to require the laying of lead piping. This question was also disposed of in a very business like way.

The owners of property north of Depot street have been canvassed as to width of street desired and 75% have expressed their opinion as being in favor of a 30-foot road.

A motion was made and carried to adjourn until next Tuesday evening, Nov. 21. The board of local improvement is to meet at 7:00 o'clock.

Firemen's Annual Ball Proves a Big Success

The dance held by the firemen in the opera house Friday evening proved a big success socially and financially. The affair was handled very nicely by those in charge and everything went off smoothly.

Schmidt's orchestra furnished the music and it must be said that they were not a bit backward in responding to encores, playing as many as four and five to each dance.

The supper served at the Woodman hall proved a big success. Everything worked fine and the service rendered was excellent. The freemen certainly are to be congratulated on the support they received from the women folks of Antioch in the articles donated.

The auction sale of the number of cakes left from the supper was a novel feature and Wallie Chinn did himself proud as an auctioneer.

The dance held away into the wee small hours of the morning and many who attended inquired when the next one would be held. Don't forget the base ball dance, Wednesday evening, November 23.

Unclaimed Letters at the Postoffice

There remained unclaimed letters at the Antioch postoffice on Monday, November 14, for Mrs. Eva Brown, Theo. Belshan, John Friedel, O. T. Murphy, Mrs. C. E. Rosenstock, Mrs. Fred Schmidt, Miss Stanley, Mrs. Nellie Taylor.

Fire Dept. Will Meet Monday Evening

As the Village board will meet on Tuesday evening, in the village hall, the fire department will hold their regular meeting on Monday evening, November 21. All members are urged to be present and make reports on firemen's ball.

Will Close Evenings

The Antioch Packing Company will close every evening at 6 o'clock except Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

Sidelights on the Firemen's Ball

By Frank J. Dedie

A strangely dreamy, imaginative mood came over you as you entered the Wilton opera house ball room and heard the sweet strains of John Schmidt's orchestra, and inhaled the sweet fragrance of imported perfume that seemed to arise from Mrs. Veigel's person at the 5th annual reception and ball given by the Volunteer Fire Department of this prosperous town of Antioch.

Music more than anything else satisfies this mood for in music great men have portrayed the struggles of their inner life, their soul's secrets, and through music simple peoples have revealed in their quaint songs and dances the naive characteristics of their living. All the gamut of human emotions is expressed in music so simply and clearly that a parallel of any mood may be found in its literature.

Although the temperature was near freezing the people of Antioch and the surrounding community responded cheerfully and at 9 o'clock the ball room was thronged with children, old folks and merry couples dancing to the strains of a dreamy waltz.

A coal fire glowed in the two oval stoves that set in two corners of the hall and gave the hall the comfort which a city house require in the interval between steam heat and summer warmth. Many thanks to Garland the coal passer.

Between the long windows with their straight hanging draperies and gilt architectural projections hung beautiful red letter indications (of course printed by the Antioch Press) showing in case of fire the way to the fire escape.

Around the entrance and practically the whole south end of the ball room resembled a mass meeting of I. W. W. for there stood young and old men reflectively watching the demurelles bobbing-up and down with their partners in our modern dances. After each dance these sightseers or members of the K. K. K. would cast their eyes carelessly around the hall and view the wonderful silk hosiery display which was a pleasure for anyone with good eyesight to witness.

From back of the stove Isaac Monheit watched the young ones amuse themselves sliding across the dance floor and occasionally fall and imitate an O'cedar mop. Now you know Ike's got an eye for business so he encouraged the children to enjoy themselves.

Even the old folks enjoyed themselves at this dance that is long to be remembered. Take Jim Gray for instance, in his swallow tail coat and his silver gray hair, trying to dance a one-step. Some say Jim would make a fine dancing teacher. Yes, he might be able to teach capable cripples modern dancing in ten lessons.

Then there was Mrs. Brooks trying to teach Charlie Thorne how to fox trot—you see Charlie—you do a sa-shay to the right for a while, a come-on-lady-back-and-forth about six beats or eight. Little Charlie tried it and there he was shoving her around with a dignified step like an alderman pushing a wheelbarrow.

Unlike Charlie, Mr. and Mrs. Story accomplished what they most desired and that was reducing. Every quadrille found them on the floor keeping time with the harmonious voice of Carl Horton, although some people say he'd make a better auctioneer than a he would a caller, but selling cows is not in Horton's line, probably inspecting chicken may suit him better. You can never judge a person by his occupation, for all that patronize George's place know that Axel Thomas weaves a nasty razor which takes to make a good barber; but going from the ridiculous to the sublime Axel can sure shake a wicked shoulder.

Owing to the fact that most of the merry-makers came in autos, Mr. Matthews, of the Standard Oil Co. was present to sort of remind the folks

MILK BOARD ASKS CONTROL BY PETITION

Want Signatures as Means of Obtaining Better Price

ANTIOCH LOCAL TO ACT

A meeting of Milk Producers was held in Lake Villa Wednesday afternoon at which both Mr. Holt, president of the Milk Producers association, and Mr. Rockwell, secretary, were the speakers.

Mr. Holt was the first speaker and he went over the situation that lead up to the split in the board of directors of the Marketing company and discussed the subject of the cause of the present price of milk.

Mr. Holt stated that prior to the fixing of price for September milk, the milk board of the Producers association had decided on a price of $2.00 for September milk and when the board met with the executive board of the Marketing board to set the price they were informed by Mr. Williams that they had decided to ask a price of $1.50 in an attempt to drive the slackers into line. This price was quoted to the buyers and Mr. Holt declares that at that time Mr. Keulman, chairman of the buyers, arose and asked Mr. Williams if it were not a low price. Mr. Holt claims that at that time the producers could of obtained a price of $2.00 or better.

Mr. Holt further stated that at the time for the setting of the October price the milk board went into conference with the buyers in an attempt to negotiate a better price and as the committee held out for a price of $2.00 for October milk and the buyers could not come to any agreement as they had a split amongst themselves nothing was accomplished. At this time an independent milk association was formed in McHenry and a committee called on the milk board to set a price. This committee and the board went into conference with the buyers, but were unable to accomplish anything. The buyers at this time wanted to know who they were to deal with inasmuch as the producers already had three different factions working to set a price. This inquiry has lead to the point, according to Mr. Holt, where the producers have got to get together and present a united front to the buyers.

Mr. Holt then unfolded the plan which is the outcome of the conference held last Thursday by the milk board and the committee selected at Elgin, to act as an advisory committee, headed by W. D. Dunning of Pleasant Prairie. The plan is fully explained in a letter sent out to the secretaries of the different locals, which follows:

In view of the deplorable conditions of the dairy industry in the Chicago dairy district and the prevailing low price of fluid milk, far below any estimate of the cost of production, we are enclosing a petition for your consideration and signature, authorizing the Milk Producers' association to use its best efforts in securing a better price for December milk.

We are also enclosing receipt book for membership in the Milk Producers' association and ask that you secure as many signers to the petition and members to the petition as possible and return to this office within the next week.

Yours truly,
F. T. Holt, Pres.
E. C. Rockwell, Sec.

Following is the petition to be signed: We, the undersigned members of the local of the Milk Producers association, conscious of the fact that we can not continue to produce milk for the prevailing price, do hereby request the milk board of the Milk Producers association to use its best efforts to secure a better price for our December milk. Mr. Holt asks that quick action be taken in this matter as the milk board will meet with the buyers Nov. 25th at which time the price of milk for December will be set. It is thought that with a united front the milk board can ask a price a little over $2.00 and feel confident that they will be able to get results.

A meeting is called for the Antioch local for next Wednesday evening, November 23rd at the village hall, Antioch, at 7:30 to take up the question of these petitions.

Mr. Holt is authority for the statement that the Marketing company so far have been unable to negotiate the $350,000 loan contemplated to take care of financial affairs of the company.

Makes a Discovery.
A four-year-old boy visiting in Columbus last week had had but little experience in the country, having lived all of his life in a large city. His knowledge of plants was limited to those he had seen in parks and in the very small yards in city homes. He was driving in the country with relatives, and the machine passed a field overrun with foxtail, a tall grass with a brushlike tip. The youngster regarded the grass with bulging eyes, and finally he cried, excitedly, "Oh, mother, mother, here is the place where the wooly worms grow."—Indianapolis News.

Attention.
The family was out of town, and the house was left in charge of a young housemaid. On opening the door the first morning she found the charwoman standing there, obviously angry. "I've been ringing and ringing here for half an hour," she said. "Why ever didn't you come sooner?" "Oh! Was that you?" replied the housemaid. "You kept on so regular that I thought it was only the telephone."—London Tit-Bits.

Against All Rules.
As every golfer is aware, it is against the rules to remove anything growing on the course. The other day a player asked: "What should I do on the putting green if a worm lay between my ball and the hole? Am I entitled to lift it or brush it aside?" "Well," replied his companion, "I think you should brush it aside." "Yes," he replied, "you may be right, but this was a young and growing worm, you know!"—Houston Post.

"Your position is unanswerable. I will tell you all I can, but that may not be much."
"You mean I am to question you?"
"You may try, but I warn you; I am a very difficult subject. I may answer and I may not. If I refuse, still you must pretend to be content. Are the terms too rigorous?"
"It sounds like a test."

"It is a test. I must remain a mystery, not from any real desire to conceal my identity from you, but because of a duty to others. Now I will tell you all I can."

"You greet me as Philip Severn tonight, yet last evening I told you my name was Harry Daly. How did you know I lied? And how did you discover who I really was?"
Her eyes sparkled with enjoyment. "I knew that would be your first question. The answer is extremely simple. Did you wonder why I did not denounce you to those men in the other room? Oh, you did! You knew you were there surreptitiously, in disguise, under a false name, masquerading as a friend of that fellow Horner. You knew it—well, so did I."

"But how could you know that?"
"What gave you such a suspicion? And, knowing it, why should you desire to protect me?"

"I'll waive your last question; that can wait its own answer." She leaned toward me and her extended hand touched a ring I wore.

"Because men who wear a Yale signet of 1890 are not going to be connected with that kind of a gang," she said gravely.

"But," I exclaimed, bewildered, "how did you recognize the signet?"

"My brother wears one."

"Your brother! In my class? You will not tell me his name?"

"No, Mr. Severn. I have reason to believe you know him very well, or did a few years ago. However, that was why I trusted you so suddenly. I planned my faith on the honor of old Yale. That is why I kept silent and asked you to call at 247 Le Comte street."

"I did call," I rather indignantly. "And was informed there was no 'Miss Conrad' residing in the house."

"I suspected you might make some such discovery. Yet your coming was appreciated; it afforded me the opportunity I sought to discover where you were stopping and under what name you registered. To confess the truth, this was my sole object in the sudden invitation of Miss Conrad."

"Then there is no such person?"

"I would hardly go as far as that; undoubtedly there is; in fact, I know a very estimable stenographer by that name, but she does not reside on Le Comte street."

"But how could my inquiry there have brought you the information desired? I was not asked my name."

"A boy got into the car with you at the corner, did he not—a Jewish boy? You paid no attention to him after that; you had no conception that he got off also where you did and was not far behind you when you entered the hotel. He did not remain long, merely long enough to assure himself that you were given a key from the box and went upstairs. That proved you to be a registered guest. Ten minutes later he met me outside and told me what he had learned. Then I paid him and he went away. Not at all complicated, you see."

"No, but even then your information was incomplete."

"Yet I found it quite easy to fill in the details. Do you recall your class picture, with the names printed below? I copied those names—it was quite a task—and, in a way, memorized them. With these in mind I ran back over the hotel register until I came to 'Philip Severn, Washington, D. C., G-145.' Then I knew I had found you." She laughed softly.

"Then you did not return to Washington?"

"There was really no need. Besides, circumstances compelled me to change my plans."

The answer instantly brought back to my mind what those circumstances might be. Her immediate presence, her ease of manner and happy mode of speech had for the moment obliterated the dark crime with which she was associated.

"You know of Alva's death, I presume?" I asked, endeavoring to put the question carefully.

Her lips were grave again, but her clear eyes met mine frankly.

"I read what the papers said. It was very terrible. Who do you suppose did it?"

"The police seem to have no clue," I answered, astounded by her calmness. "I wondered if you knew anything? He asked you to ride down with him, did he not?"

"Why, yes, he did make such a suggestion, but I never liked the man."

Of course, I only met him that night—you remember in the saloon, but he was very disagreeable even during the short time we were together. I would not have ridden alone with him at that hour for worlds. Mr. Krantz and I came downtown together on a street car—he was the old man, you may remember. I asked him to escort me."

"I am very glad to hear you say that."

"Glad! Why, what do you mean?"

Her eyes widened, with sudden apprehension. "You did not suppose I was with Alva when he was murdered, did you?"

"Yet it is so strange, after all! I defended, rather indignantly. 'In a way it seemed impossible enough to connect you even indirectly with such a crime. But I have only known you as an associate with these men. In truth, I know very little more regarding you, even now. You meet them secretly, bearing credentials and orders from high junta conspirators, who are plotting against the very life of their country. You know their plans and are aiding them. Why, under such conditions should I make an exception in your case—merely because you are a woman?"

"So you actually believed me capable of that atrocity? Perhaps you are justified, if you think me a Chilean."

"Are you not?"

"No, I am not a Chilean, Mr. Severn. I am an American girl, as loyal to my country as my ancestors. Will you accept my word for this?"

"Why, Yes, He Did Make Such a Suggestion, But I Never Liked the Man."

"I certainly do, more gladly than you dream."

"Then let us talk no more about it," she glanced at her wrist watch. "You have a story to tell me—how you came to be present last night?"

"A mere accident put me in possession of certain information that a coterie of South American conspirators in this country were receiving a large sum of money from friends in London."

"I explained briefly. 'This money was to be expended either in the purchase of arms or the killing of certain Chilean officials, leading to an overthrow of government. My knowledge was extremely vague—not sufficient, you understand, to warrant my making any report to the United States authorities. I had no proof beyond a rather vague suspicion. In truth, about all the clue I actually possessed was that these fellows met secretly at a certain number on Gans street. I was half a day in learning that Gans street was located in Jersey City and I went over there that evening to seek blindly for further information."

"You knew the names of those involved?"

"Only casually. I had heard of Alva; that the agent bringing the bundle from England was known as Horner and that the actual money exchange was to be made through Adolph Krantz, the banker."

"You had never seen any of these men?"

"Only Krantz; I knew him by sight." "Then it was my meeting with Alva which led you to the factory?"

"Yes. I had dropped into the saloon because it was the only place to get out of the rain. When Alva arrived, it was perfectly plain to be seen you two had never met before. You went out together and I could not help but connect the whole affair together. The mud enabled me to trail you down the alley and good luck enabled me to gain entrance to the factory without detection. That is about the whole story."

She sat motionless, with hands clasped in her lap and eyes fastened upon me. The depth of her interest in my recital was very apparent. "Then you were not really a friend of that Horner? You told me you were."

I laughed, the absurdity of the recollection coming suddenly home with full force.

"I had to account in some way for my presence; that was the only inspiration which came to mind. It happened that Horner had adopted me and even given me a rechristening, which I was compelled to accept."

"Harry Daly, the name you gave me?"

"Yes. He ran across me prowling about in the dark and flashed an electric light in my face. Before I could move the fellow thought he recognized me and jumped at once to the conclusion that I was there on the same job he was."

"What was that?"

"Robbery."

"The—the English money which was to be paid over?"

"Of course—it looked easy; all cash and no one would dare go after it by law."

"And Horner was in it—the agent? Why didn't he help himself before?"

"How could he? It was a mere letter of credit to be cashed in this country. He had to wait until it was transmitted into currency. Besides, this fellow was not the real Horner; he is an American thief who has been operating in London. The real Horner has been put out of the way."

"Good heavens! I am beginning to see a ray of light. Who, then, is the man?"

"George Harris—'Gentleman George' they call him."

"And he actually mistook you for one of his kind?"

"He certainly did; extremely flattering, wasn't it? I am supposed to be one of the fraternity, in good standing—Harry Daly, whoever he may be. Unfortunately I am not up in criminal biography."

Her glance left my face and swept the room; then sought her watch again.

"I am so glad you told me all this," she said gravely. "It is going to be a wonderful help when I have time to think. You are still willing to go where I ask, without questioning?"

"I am even pleased to be asked—and trusted."

"Then we will go now. Perhaps it will be better if you depart first and wait for me outside at the entrance."

She arose when I did, turning slightly so that the back of her broad-brimmed hat became visible for the first time. There, bravely displayed, was the ornamental dagger hilt I had believed hidden in my valise at the hotel. The sight of it there vanquished my last suspicion.

CHAPTER IX.

Peron's Cafe.

A thousand questions were upon my lips as I waited just outside the door, yet when she appeared, wrapped from head to foot in a raincoat, I asked nothing. The pressure of her hand on my arm guided me across Broadway, into the quieter streets beyond.

It was a dark, cool night, cloudy but without rain, and we walked rapidly, entering a region with which I was unfamiliar. Here was a strange situation indeed, acting as escort to a woman about whom I knew next to nothing; voluntarily accompanying her on a mission of peril, with no conception of its nature, or the purpose she had in view. I glanced aside at her profile revealed by the gleam of a street lamp, but she appeared indifferent to my presence, intent only upon whatever object she had in mind.

We were in the gloom of the deserted block beyond, when she spoke abruptly, startling me with the inquiry:

"Do you know a Russian named Waldron?"

"No. I have heard of him; that is, if you refer to the agitator, the socialist. That was his wife, wasn't it, where you sent me this afternoon?"

She turned toward me in surprise. "How did you chance to learn that, pray?"

"I stopped on the corner, at the delicatessen store, and made some inquiries."

She laughed, one of her soft laughs, with an odd suggestion of music in the tone.

"Why, really, you are developing wonderfully. I must give you credit. Well, then it may interest you to know that I am going now to meet Ivan Waldron. The place where I believe him to be is not altogether safe for a woman without an escort. Your mere presence will be sufficient protection, however; it is not necessary that you encounter him. By the way, what has become of your friend—Horner, alias Harris?"

"Dropped completely out of sight," I admitted, "since early this morning. That chances to be why I feel some interest in this man Waldron. It was a note from him, left at Costigan's saloon, which caused Harris to leave so hurriedly."

"Who brought the note?" she stopped suddenly, and faced me in the dim lamp light.

"A Jewish boy, known as 'Sly Levy.'"

SUNDAY SERVICES:

Sunday School 9:45
Morning Service 11:00
Epworth League 7:00
Evening Service 7:45

This is Win My Chum week for the Epworth League and each member of the League is to try to get two young people to join the League, securing their applications during the week. As an introductory, the League held an Armistice day patriotic party last Friday night at which more than fifty lively young folks spent a most enjoyable evening. Those present not members of the League were cordially invited to come to the League's devotional meeting Sunday evening, and about thirty-five were present at one of the most interesting meetings Sunday evening the League has ever had. In the preaching service just after the League meeting, the pastor preached specially to the young people on "The Strength of Youth." He showed that youth is strong because it can recover and recuperate very often when age cannot, and because youth is full of high courage and daring, where age is often more timid and hesitating. The preacher declared this readiness to go ahead and dare is due to the confidence youth has that it is God who has made the universe and that He has made it right, so that youth says: "If I am just perfectly honest and determined to do what I ought, I know I can dare and go ahead and I will arrive where I ought to be." This was shown to be the real foundation faith which God implants in all people when they come fresh from His own hand; and the reason there is more of it in youth than in the later life of many, is that youth is more nearly fresh from God's hand.

It was then pointed out that since such strength is with you, and since they are so soon to take the whole field now occupied by their elders, therefore the future is with them; that human civilization is in their hands for saving or for wrecking; that they are the hope of the world; that the responsibility for the life or death of human civilization is upon the youth of today. Then, declaring that it is the unanimous voice of the great leaders of the world during the next few years it will be saved only by Christianity.

There was evident response to the appeal and it is believed that the young people of the community will rally to the strengthening of the churches of Antioch in a larger measure than ever before. Mr. Mumford is to preach to the young folks again the coming Sunday evening at 7:45, after the League meeting, on "The Religion of Youth," and an earnest appeal is being given to all the folks of the whole community to join him. Many hundreds of people have received great inspiration from his addresses to people in many states, not only the pulpits, but on the church platforms and in large numbers of addresses for schools in Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, etc.

Epworth League meeting at Antioch Sunday evening will be a most interesting and it is hoped new names will be presented for membership, their applications turned in by the Leaguers as of their work during the week. The morning service the coming Sunday is "All in Place and All in Action" Sunday school attendance of the hundred mark last Sunday.

Farm Bureau News

C. E. WHEELLOCK of Libertyville, Ill.

While Lake county is by location a dairy section there are a few farmers interested in feeding beef cattle. Frank McCormick, about two miles north of Libertyville, and Meyer Bros., near Woodstock, each have a nice bunch of cattle on feed. To any who are considering the disposal of some of their feed this winter through the beef cattle market, the information given below may be of interest.

The figures are taken from an experiment conducted during the past two winters in five different states, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri. This wide territory, and the fact that 34,934 steers were under observation, should give you some trustworthy results.

The average weight of all cattle at the start of the feeding period was 786 pounds, and the final weight 1,070 pounds. The gain amounted to 284 pounds over an average feeding period of 174 days or a gain of 1.6 pounds per day. Some, of course, gained more, and some less than this average amount.

The interesting part is the amount of feed consumed for 100 pounds of gain.

It took 680 pounds of grain, 62 pounds of commercial concentrates (oil meal, cotton seed meal, etc.) 391 pounds of dry roughage, 862 pounds of silage and the equivalent of 20 days of pasture.

At present prices this feed for 100 pounds of gain would cost about $12.50, a two and one-half cent margin on a steer weighing 786 pounds when put on feed, and making a gain of 250 pounds would allow a profit per steer of about $10 per head on feed cost. Steers will make some gain on what might be called waste feed, such as is left in the fields in the way of corn stalks, grass, clover, etc. Gains made in this way are practically all profit, as the feed would otherwise be wasted.

There is, of course, the risk of losing an animal, which would bring down the profit. It is a question that each feeder has to decide for himself. These figures on the amount of feed required may help in arriving at some conclusion. There is generally plenty of feed this year, and feed is cheap. Some of it might be marketed profitably in the form of beef cattle.

National Live Stock Plan

Producers of the country who met at Chicago last week have adopted by a unanimous vote the marketing report of the farmers' national live stock marketing committee of fifteen. Only two minor amendments were made in the plan.

The plan, in brief, contemplates the establishment of farmer-owned and controlled commission firms at the principal markets of the country. Local co-operative live stock shipping associations will be the foundation upon which these commission firms will be built. As a national directing organization there will be established the National Live Stock Producers' association, with headquarters in Chicago.

The conference which adopted the plan was composed of 50 producers, representing live stock producers of 17 states. Illinois, together with Iowa and Ohio, had the largest number of delegates—six. The Illinois delegates, all of the Illinois agricultural association, were: Howard Leonard, Eureka; J. M. Beckett, Blue Mound; J. R. Fulkerson, Jerseyville; S. H. Thomson, Quincy; Frank E. Drury, Jacksonville, and G. C. Johnston, Bloomington.

State farm bureau federations and co-operative live stock shipping associations were apportioned delegates on the basis of membership and business.

Illinois, it was brought out at the conference, has had a prominent part in the plan of the committee of fifteen. Three members of the committee were Illinois men, H. W. Mumford, secretary-treasurer of the committee of fifteen, being a director of the Illinois Agricultural association, while W. J. Carmichael, of Chicago, and W. S. Corsa of White Hall were also members of the committee and took an active part in its deliberations.

In the establishment of the commission firms at the terminal markets, the state farm bureaus, which have had the principal part in the creation of the plan, will take the initiative.

No Over-Production Here

Illinois is almost stationary in the number of acres devoted to small fruit production which includes strawberries, cranberries, currants and other berries. The total acreage was 11,723 in 1909, as compared with 11,215 in 1910. The total for the United States in 1909 was 272,400, as compared with 249,084 in 1910, a decrease of 8.6 per cent. There is an opportunity for considerable increase in small fruit production, but since labor and transportation are so important no steps should be taken without a careful summary of these two factors. The transportation problem may be eliminated where small fruit plantations are located near large centers of population. Any city of 20,000 inhabitants or more offers an inducement to small fruit growers because the demand usually far exceeds the supply. It is also true that in such localities the labor problem in rush seasons may easily be solved by interesting labor element in the cities.

The figures above are from a statement made by W. S. Brock, extension specialist in horticulture.

Our location, so near Chicago and cities on the lake shore, provides a ready market for small fruit. The farmer who can provide for the laborer during the berry season should take in a neat little sum from a half acre or more of small fruit. The lake regions are becoming more of a summer resort every year. This provides another market better than most localities have at their door.

The European Corn Borer

This pest can do more damage to the corn plant than any kind of a bug discovered so far. It seems to have some inclination to head toward the corn belt, where there is assurance of good feed and plenty of it.

Its advance has reached now as far as northern Ohio. Here and across the lake in Canada many fields have been a 100 per cent loss, due to the destructive work of this worm. There are over 150 plants that it is known to feed upon, but seems to prefer corn over anything else. The worm bores its way up through the stalk on the inside and may enter the ear through the shank and not be noticed on the surface at all.

The sweet corn industry has been all but ruined in the infected sections, as people do not relish boiling ears that have the cob honeycombed and tenanted by this corn pest.

The farm bureau will have specimens of these worms at the office in the near future.

While it is not anticipated that this worm will reach us for some little time, and we hope never, it is on the way, and has already gone several hundred miles from the starting point, where it landed from Europe in a shipment of broom corn.

The worms, as they appear in alcohol solution are a whitish color, and about three-fourths of an inch long. They stay in the stalks, stubble and fence rows during the winter, and in the spring a miller develops that lays eggs for another brood. These millers can fly for a considerable distance, especially when blown by the wind. It is thought that they traveled in this way across Lake Erie to the Canada shore. The only method of control on a large scale so far is burning stalks and stubble. Better methods will likely be developed. The thing for us to do is to be very careful to inspect any shipment of grain, especially ear corn, also vegetables that come from the east.

The farm bureau will be glad to have any suspicious looking worm identified that may be brought to the office, and urges farmers to report anything that looks as though it might belong to the corn borer tribe.

POULTRY CACKLES

BEST RETURNS FROM PULLETS

Maturity Can Be Hastened by Right Kind of Care and Feeding—Range Desirable.

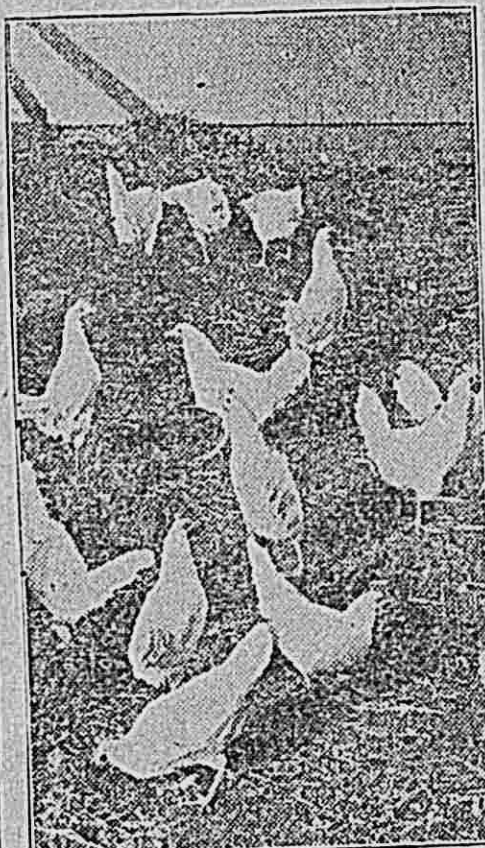

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A flock of pullets that can be brought to laying in the fall will give the largest yearly profit. The average poultry keeper falls either to hatch early enough in spring, so that the pullets may reach laying maturity in October, or he does not keep them growing rapidly enough to bring this about. Pullets that do not get to laying well before the arrival of cold weather and the short days of December, will seldom start egg production before February. Thus two or three months of additional feeding are required, and the advantage of this period of highest egg prices is lost.

Very few eggs are secured on the average farm during autumn and early winter, but experienced poultrymen by better management secure a fair egg production during these seasons. It is advisable, though not essential, that the cockerels and pullets be separated as early as possible and given separate free range.

A coop that will hold 100 young chickens will not house properly more than half as many growing pullets. Their maturity will be retarded if too many are kept together, or if they are annoyed by lice or mites. Frequent inspection of the houses, especially after the pullets have gone to roost, is advisable. If mites are seen crawling on the perches or are found by a careful inspection of the house, prompt measures must be taken to kill them by spraying the interior of the house, as advised by the United States Department of Agriculture, with crude petroleum, kerosene, creosol solution, kelp dip, or some other effective solution. Body lice frequently cause much annoyance and retard growth and maturity. Individual treatment of each pullet with sodium fluoride or mercurial ointment will clean up these pests on the birds themselves.

Feed freely of a good egg-laying ration; give plenty of range, and be sure they get plenty of mash. It is a help to keep it in hoppers, where they can have free access to it. A light feeding of moist mash, especially if mixed with milk, may induce them to eat a little more. If 25 per cent of buckwheat middlings is added to the allotment of mash to be moistened with milk or water it will be eaten eagerly by the pullets. A liberal amount of meat scrap in the mash is advisable at this time, particularly if plenty of milk is not available.

Corn, wheat, oats and barley are the principal grains fed. Kaffir and buckwheat also are used, but are not so generally available, and usually cost more. Corn and wheat are the two best grains and are about equal in value, although wheat can be fed alone better than corn, which is inclined to be fattening. Oats and barley, on account of their hulls and higher fiber content, are not so good as corn or wheat. Rye is not well relished, and is seldom fed.

Corn meal, wheat bran, wheat middlings, and meat scrap form the basis of a good mash, while corn chop, corn and cob meal, ground oats, and low-grade corn may be added or substituted to advantage.

When on free range the fowls obtain a little of several different kinds of feed. Grain should not be made the sole food, for then fat and not eggs is the usual result.

Place setting hens in colony houses or other rat-proof buildings. Brood coops with tight floors are useful for setting hens. Many a promising hatch has been ruined by the rat that stole the eggs.

Old hens may pay their way just by producing meat for the table, but why have a flock working half-time to produce meat when it might as well work full time, producing both meat and eggs?

A PROGRESSIVE TOWN ATTRACTS THE BEST

Community interest and co-operation not only means a bigger and better town in which to live but also means greater educational advantages for that community, because instructors of ability will only go into those towns where things are prosperous and schools are modern and up-to-date enough to give them fair remuneration, consequently the best instructors are attracted to live, prosperous, energetic towns.

The same is true in regard to churches. Preachers of ability and power do not like to locate in a slow, non-progressive community. They want to be in a town which is constantly developing and reaching out for better things, and where there is an opportunity for real work.

This is just another illustration of how every family of an entire community is directly and personally benefited through their loyal co-operation in boosting the home community.

There is no better time than right now for a display of initiative and co-operation on your part to advance the community and yourself.

Whether your home town is a good town or a dead town; whether it is wide awake or half-asleep, rests entirely with the citizens of your home town.

If the desire on the part of the community is strong enough, it can easily accomplish anything within reason.

Local business concerns are absolutely necessary to the business life of any community, and every dollar sent away helps to retard and destroy the business life of that community. We must hear folks say the town was going back.

That nobody was boostin' an' that business was slack. But everything is different now an' you don't hear that talk. Cause everybody's boostin' an' quit buyin' goods by mail.

49 RED CROSS NURSES IN STATE

Has Strong Public Health Nursing Program.

WITH 49 Red Cross Public Health nurses promoting better living conditions in connection with the other activities of the 120 Chapters of the American Red Cross here in Illinois the importance of the work is of unusual interest.

The rural program has been found well adapted to this state, and many localities have been reached by this department of activity during the past year for the first time. Physical inspection of the children in the rural schools is one of the most important phases of this work. They are inspected for defective teeth, eyesight, and hearing. Weighing and measuring are a part of this health program, and frequent nutrition classes are organized to help under-nourished children reach a normal development.

Public Health nurses frequently have adult classes in Home Hygiene as well as classes in the schools, thereby extending their services beyond routine of school inspection. During the past year 2,541 women have passed the examinations and received certificates in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick given by Red Cross instructors.

Different problems exist in the cities, where the dangers of contagion and the need of intensive health education are greater. In addition to the physical inspection of school children, the organizing of clinics and the investigation of home conditions, there is much "follow up" work to be done. Through the co-operation of the teachers, minor defects which tend to retard school children mentally as well as physically are detected and corrected in the clinics.

In both city and country communities the Red Cross has a clearly defined program which may be adapted to local needs. That 23 Chapters since last year have realized the need of this work and extended their program to include this very practical activity proves the growing appreciation for this endeavor.

On Armistice Day—November 11—the annual Roll Call of the Red Cross will be launched. Membership dollars will enable the Red Cross not only to carry on the valuable service it is already rendering, but expand the work to reach a wider field.

$1,121,858 HAS BEEN EXPENDED IN THE CARE OF EX-SERVICE MEN AND THEIR FAMILIES BY THE 748 CHAPTERS OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS HERE IN CENTRAL DIVISION. MORE THAN TEN MILLIONS IS BEING SPENT ANNUALLY FOR THESE SOLDIERS THROUGHOUT THE NATION. YOUR MEMBERSHIP DOLLARS WILL HELP TO CARRY ON THIS WORK. ANNUAL ROLL CALL ARMISTICE DAY TO THANKS-GIVING (NOV. 11 TO 24). RE MEMBER AND RE-ENROLL.

That the boys and girls of today who are to be the men and women of tomorrow are learning the value of good citizenship not only in their own communities but throughout the world, is shown by the $210,123 members enrolled in the 850 Junior Auxiliaries of the American Red Cross here in this state. More than five million pupils in the public, parochial and private schools of the United States are enrolled in this great organization.

Here in Illinois a number of other Junior activities have been carried on with the help of the teachers. More than 880 toys were made by Juniors in Chicago, and sent overseas to children's schools in the devastated regions. Dixon made a feature of the work in civics.

Hot lunches were provided from Junior funds in Granite City and Pinckneyville. This work is considered a great help to nutrition service which is another Red Cross activity often carried on in the schools. Milk was distributed in schools in Peoria and was financed by the Juniors.

In many of the Chicago schools the sick and unfortunate among the service men as well as inmates of children's hospitals and various institutions have become the special interest of the different schools. Programs have been provided for the nation by the Juniors, concerts and story hours arranged for their amusement.

A number of garments were made by the children for hospital use of convalescent ex-service men.

Activities for this year in Illinois are well under way. Schools are enrolling as auxiliaries to carry on the various objects. To carry on this work and increase its scope as well as the many other vital community services which the Red Cross chapters are rendering in their communities is one of the objectives of the Annual Roll which opens on November 11, Armistice Day, and continues until Thanksgiving.

These Fowls Require Little Care and Attention Compared With Returns They Bring.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Roast goose and apple sauce! Christmas in many homes is incomplete without them, and for that reason the best season in which to market the goose is the latter part of December, although there is a limited demand all the year.

Goose raising is not so extensively engaged in as duck raising, the conditions under which they can be successfully raised being almost entirely different from those necessary for successful duck raising. The duck, being smaller, can be raised in a more limited space than can the goose, the latter needing free range and water, while the former has been proved to do well without water.

While the goose cannot profitably be raised in as large numbers as the duck, still it cannot justly be termed unprofitable. There are many places on a farm that are worthless for cultivation that could be utilized with excellent results for goose raising. Fields that have streams, branches, or unused springs on them could be turned to good advantage by making them into goose pastures. A goose on range will gather the largest portion of its food, consisting of grasses, insects, and other animal and vegetable matter to be found in the fields and brooks.

Young geese are fattened by placing them in a pen, not too large, so that they will not exercise too much, and by feeding them once a day all they will eat up clean of a moist mash made of one-half shorts and two-thirds cornmeal, and two feeds daily of corn with some oats or barley. While fattening young geese they should be kept as quiet as possible; no excitement whatever should disturb them. Poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say: When feeding, approach them quietly, and do not frighten them. At ten weeks of age, or when the tips of the wings reach the fall, they are ready for market. If they have been heavily fed, and should weigh between eight and ten pounds. Most young geese from general farms are sold when they are from five to eight months old.

When young geese are to be processed for market, they are first stuck in the roof of the mouth with a long-bladed knife and then stunned by hitting them a sharp, quick blow on the head. For dry picking the picker uses a box in front of him about the height of the knees, holding the bird with the left hand and clamping the feet and wings together; he places the head of the bird against the box and holds it in place with the knee. Pick the feathers from the body of the bird, then turn the bird to remove the down. Leave about two inches of feathers on the neck, and also leave feathers on the wings at the first joint. Lay the wings against the body of the birds and tie a string around to hold in position. Place the birds, when picked, in cold water for an hour or so to plump them; if they are in the water too long they are liable to bleed and become water-soaked. They are then fed up in barrels ready to ship to market.

Any margin over market prices received for breeding stock is pure profit, and the demand, especially for hatching eggs, comes at a time when the egg baskets are easily filled.

Be on the lookout for dampness in the poultry houses. Where freezing is common, close-built houses are very apt to show condensation of moisture on ceiling and walls. Too large a number of birds in a house will also cause this.

In other hen-hatched or incubator-hatched flocks, there are likely to be some backward, slow-growing, slow-feathering chicks. If the hatch is in the brooder, separate these backward chicks, and give them to a hen, or put them with a younger hatch. A turkey hen that has no family is an ideal mother for them.

Women's Club Notes

The Woman's club acknowledges with thanks the courtesy of 'Ye editor' in placing at our disposal such newspaper space as may be needed from week to week to aid us in carrying on the work and to keep the public informed in regard to the programs—the open meetings—and general trend of its activities. A vote of thanks is hereby extended to The Antioch News.

The club has entered its second year with a membership of sixty interested women. We look forward to a year of pleasant intercourse and profitable work and trust that because of the Woman's club, much helpful work may be done toward making our little village a better place in which to live.

Every town needs a Woman's club and every woman should be proud to become a member of an organization so certain to bring only good into the community. No organized band of women ever stood behind an unworthy cause.

We invite the women of Antioch to become members of the Club—Don't stay out and knock—but come in and boost.

A study class in Civics or Citizenship was organized last week under the leadership of Miss Alice Smith. It is held in her class room at the high school at 3:15 on Tuesday of each week and is open to all who care to avail themselves of the privilege. A magazine club and discussion of current events is also planned as part of the work of the study class.

Were there a greater number of days in the week the class would be larger—as it is many of our women find it difficult to live on the allotted twenty-four hours a day.

Owing to the storm of last week the delegates elected to attend the 10th District Annual convention in Chicago, Nov. 9, were unable to attend. This throws the program for the next meeting somewhat out of line. The reports of these conventions are always full of interest and leave room for nothing else. However, "It is an ill wind that blows nobody good." Regretting our inability to have a report from so important a convention, yet by reason of this failure, we are to have a program arranged by Miss Smith and Miss Seward of the high school. The Arms Conference now being held in Washington will be taken up and discussed point by point by those who have read widely and followed closely the plans for world disarmament as are now being considered at this Peace conference.

Special music also will be a part of the program.

Meeting held at Guild hall Monday, Nov. 21, at 3:15. All members urged to be present.

Committee.

Putting it off today won't get it done tomorrow. An advertisement in this paper today will bring business tomorrow.

not to run low on their gas and to take part in what they called the circle two step. To the writer of this article the circle two step resembled more of a rugby game with Bob Smart playing fullback and Carl Naber playing halfback and just by chance they almost had my back mixed up in the commotion.

After the two-step a waltz which made Red Field feel right at home, gliding along the dance floor trying to show Alice Gold some new steps in the art of dancing.

During all this confluence Paul the fiddler announced that supper would be served from 10:30 on till all were fed at the Woodman hall and fearing a mad rush he added kindly let the old folks go first. Entering the Woodman hall, the first person you meet has a slight attack of the gimme's and it's no other than Joe Fillweber who's melodious voice rings out gimme your ticket. Of course you know the ticket we mean. You leave the $1.00 part of it with Jim Horan for the amusement you get at the hall and you give Joe the war tax part of it for the supper.

After Joe takes your ticket you are automatically pushed into the dining hall and then "Ah" the cats. The food was good, well cooked, plentiful and unornamental. Mrs. Rose Chinn and Mrs. Charlie Runyard did the honors assisted by Mr. Charlie Runyard ex-hash slinger and Sam Tarbell, but Sam, a word to the wise, as a coffee hoister you'd make a good watch maker.

The chaffing among the gay people in the dining room as they sat munching sandwiches and sour pickles was of an intimate and affectionate quality. Everyone ate their full but Antoinette Smart, "Peg" for short. The reason we believe is that some one said, go easy on the grub "Peg" remember the size of your aunt. About the same time that "Peg" left the table and Miss Dodge thought she had enough So Line Jim was seen going out the rear with a wash basket filled with sandwiches, cake, etc. After sneaking around buildings Jimmie enters Rosing's garage where Mr. Charlie Monroe and Bill Rosing with their belts loosened, awaited him. Now we know why Charlie did not go to Chicago Friday as usual. Bill's reason for not being at the dance was that he had to figure up his next years income tax. We really don't know whether to believe him or not, but we know that Will Hillebrand's reason was K. O. He arrived at his daughter's home in Waukegan a few hours after the stork left. Another Bill.

Going back to the ball room we find Jack Carney anchored in one of the chairs, gazing into space. A penny for your thoughts Jack.

Now you would think that that gang of firemen would at least let you go home with a few nickels in your pocket, but not while Walter Chinn was there. They lined up all the cakes that were not cut (they made sure all were not cut) and Walt gets busy. The first one brought $1.50 and $2 on till Bob Smart offered a quarter for one and that settled it. The crowd thought that was all Bob had and would not raise the bid. Results, Mrs. Smart did not have to bake the next day. Mr. John Woodhead must have figured he was Adam for he bought the big cake. Jake bought the nut cake. You get the berries Jake.

After Art Rosenfeldt banked $25 from the sale Walt wanted to sell the sandwiches, which I guess peeved the orchestra for after a few more numbers they played Home Sweet Home, which ended the celebrated firemen's ball. Now listen folks just don't get mad for if you do I'll have to run. Just call it good and say "Ain't we got fun."

Kenosha Has Cold Bath

While hunting on Camp Lake last Friday Donald Raymond, of Camp Lake hotel, noticed a boat near the western shore that seemed partly submerged. He paddled his duck boat over to investigate and discovered a man hanging to the edge of the boat. The fellow had been in the water a couple of hours and was too chilled to even call for help, besides he was very drunk. Raymond found he could not get him into the little duck boat and his boat was all but submerged, so signalled for help from the shore, Dr. Lichtenburg, of Chicago, who was at his cottage came out and together they succeeded in getting him on land. They didn't establish his identity further than he was a foreigner from Kenosha who had come out with two companions on a hunting and drinking trip. They had stopped at the Kenosha club and secured a boat and all three gone out on the lake. Two had returned to shore and the third set out by himself. Whether he tipped the boat over or just fell out was hard to decide. But his gun was still in the boat with both barrels loaded and cocked. He had been in direct line of them while hanging to the boat. They thought it might have filled from a leak. The man was cared for at the Kenosha club and did not seem to be any the worse for his ducking.

George Mattern Died Thursday

George Jacob Mattern was born in the town of Paris, September 13, 1881, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Mattern, pioneer residents of the county. He spent his life in Kenosha county and for many years was in the employ of the ice companies at Silverlake. Mr. Mattern was one of the county's best hunters and trappers and he loved to be out in the open. Surviving him are a brother, Wm. Mattern, of Wilmot, and five sisters, Mrs. J. Curry, Evanston; Mrs. F. J. Smith, Waukegan; Mrs. G. Paulsen, Chicago; Mrs. J. C. Dahl, Mellen, and Miss Marie Mattern, a teacher in Somers.

George Mattern died at his late home Thursday afternoon. He had been in failing health for several months but was up and around the day of his death. The funeral services were held at the M. E. church Sunday afternoon with Rev. Rosemurgy, of Burlington, officiating. Interment was in the family plot in the Wilmot cemetery. The floral offerings were very beautiful, bearers were James Owen, George Winchell, Louis Hegeman, Alfred Reynolds, Fred Faulkner and Tom Loftus.

Among those from away who attended the funeral of George Mattern Sunday were, Mrs. J. Curry, Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. Dahl, Mellen, Mrs. F. Smith, Waukegan, Ill., G. Paulsen, Chicago Mr. and Mrs. Hanson, Alvin Hanson Kenosha.

There will be a progressive "500" party at the Peter Neidal hotel at Twin Lakes for the benefit of the Holy Name church Thursday night, November 17. Dancing and refreshments. All invited.

Optimism That Counts

The optimism that counts most is the optimism of strong hearts, willing hands and cool heads, rather than that of the noisy boys who shout "Amen" and "Hallelujah" and do no work.

A Show Without Parallel

All previous entries have been exceeded this season by aspirants for honors at the 1921 International Live Stock Exposition to be held at Chicago November 26th to December 3rd. At a period of depression and discouragement in this, as other industries, such a response by the western breeders and feeders of cattle, swine and sheep is distinctly and gratifyingly encouraging, demonstrating not only confidence in the stability of the industry, but that progress has not been interrupted even by the most discouraging set of conditions that has ever involved the industry.

Not only are the entries larger in a numerical sense, but the galaxy of exhibitors has increased. Such mediocrity as was inseparable from early expositions has now been eliminated, the 1921 display in every department, including the grain and hay exhibit, having the assurance of quality and merit in the superlative degree.

The 1921 International Live Stock Exposition will be the most comprehensive and meritorious aggregation of products of the soil ever gathered in a display arena.

GIVE BROOD SOW VARIETY

Judicious Mixture of Foods and Proper Amount of Exercise Will Get the Best Results.

The brood sow needs a variety in her food and exercise. In experiments conducted at the North Dakota Agricultural college under the direction of Professor Shepperd it was found that sows will readily eat alfalfa hay, and that when this is fed with a mixture of about half barley and half shorts at the rate of 2½ pounds daily for a 200-pound sow, splendid results have been secured. Equal parts of barley, oats and bran or shorts also makes a very good feed. Exercise is also very important. It was found that the best way to give the grain feed was to sweep the floor clean and scatter the grain on it. This results in the sows spending hours on their feet getting their feed. Observations indicate that sows fed a variety of foods and given plenty of exercise are not likely to produce hairless pigs.

FARM LIVE STOCK

MANY DISEASES ARE COSTLY

Three-Fourths of Allments Which Often Ruin Valuable Herd Can Be Prevented.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every year the people of the United States lose over $200,000,000 directly (and no one knows how much indirectly) through the diseases of farm animals. There are five principal causes of disease and death of animals—contagious diseases, sporadic diseases, parasitic troubles, accidents, and neglect. Contagious diseases can be avoided, or at least their consequences greatly diminished, if farmers will learn to co-operate with the United States Department of Agriculture and the various state live stock and sanitary authorities, who are striving to maintain animal health. Farmers should report promptly to the nearest official any suspicion of the presence of contagious diseases, and they should observe carefully all regulations in regard to quarantine, sanitation, and care of animals, as protection against contagion.

Parasitic diseases also carry off large numbers of valuable animals every year. They are largely the result of improper housing and neglect. The average farmer cannot be expected to have the time and aptitude for study which will keep him abreast with the latest developments in feeds and feeding, animal nutrition and medicine, hygiene, and other important matters related to the stock raising industry. He can, however, avail himself of the benefit of the studies and demonstrations of specialists who have devoted their entire time to these subjects. Every state agricultural college maintains a corps of specialists whose publications and services are available.

The Department of Agriculture is constantly giving out important information in books and bulletins which may be had on request and in every state the department has representatives combating animal diseases. The wise breeder is ever on the lookout to prevent disease instead of waiting until a cure is necessary.

SPLENDID FEED FOR HOGS

Experiments Have Shown That There Is Nothing Better Than Rape, to Produce Results.

Rape has proved most valuable of spring-sown forage crops for swine at the Ohio experiment station. It furnishes a palatable, nutritious feed throughout the season, if not pastured too closely. In one experiment lasting 110 days this crop had a value, as forage for hogs, of $77.87 an acre in replacing concentrates in the ration, corn being valued at $112 a bushel and tankage at $60 a ton. In addition to this pasture the hogs received a daily grain ration amounting to 2.8 per cent of their live weight.

The crop may be seeded from April to the middle of July, either broadcast or drilled solid or in rows 24 to 28 inches apart. Five to eight pounds of seed are needed to broadcast an acre, and from two to three pounds if the rape is to be grown in rows. On good soil and with early cultivation the crop is ready to be pastured in six to ten weeks from planting.

EXAMINE FEET OF HORSES

Their Condition Is a Marked Factor in the Capacity of the Animals for Work.

In breeding horses, stress should be laid on having sound, well-shaped feet in both mares and stallions, so as to ensure this desirable quality in their progeny. Poorly shaped, weak and flat feet in the parents, or in one of them, are readily transmitted to the offspring in the same way as any other bad quality. Although poor feet are found in most breeds of horses, they are more frequent in certain breeds than in others. This is due largely to climate influences and the nature of the soil. It may be broadly stated that dry, high-lying soil and a comparatively dry climate favors the production of horses with strong, tough, sound, well-proportioned and rather small feet, while horses bred on low-lying, marshy land and in a damp climate have soft, spreading and often flat feet of an inferior quality as regards ability to stand work.

BRIEFS OF VARIOUS NEWS

Plumbers and steam fitters along the lake shore in Lake county have returned to work, accepting the $1.10 an hour scale offered by the employers. This is a cut of 15 cents an hour, the workmen having demanded $1.25. Last week the bricklayers accepted the $1.10 scale, which leaves the carpenters the only tradesmen holding out for $1.25.

The first shipment of the 1922 automobile license plates has been received from the manufacturers by Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson, and he announces that he is all set for the new season. Thousands of applications will be received after December 1, the first day for sending them in.

Work of concreting the Volo-Wauconda road is being rushed with great speed. Six hundred and fifteen feet were put in in a single day last week thus completing about a mile stretch. It is the hope of the contractor to complete about two miles of this stretch before the advent of cold weather.

Two hundred dairy farmers, members of the Huntley local of the Milk Producer's Co-operative Marketing Co., at a meeting last week voted to withdraw from the marketing company, to sever all connections, and to depend on their independent committee to look after the future marketing of their milk.

The Southern Wisconsin Electric Co. has been given consent to trim trees around Lake Geneva to prevent interruption of the electric lines. The wood is cut into staves and piled for the use of the Practically all of Telegraph Road, regarded as one of the finest concrete highways in the state, has been completed, and within a week the remainder of the road from the substation west of Lake Bluff to Waukegan will be opened.

Farmers of Racine and Kenosha counties, who devoted acreage to the raising of cabbage this year, are finding it more profitable than known in several years past, prices now ranging from $20 per ton for the domestic type to $30 per ton for the so-called Danish and Holland types.

PROFIT IN FEEDING STEERS

Excellent Authority Asserts It Can Be Done This Winter—Higher Prices Next Spring.

That steers can be fed at a profit this winter is the belief of H. H. Kildee of Iowa State college, formerly chief of the dairy husbandry division Minnesota College of Agriculture. There are 50 per cent less cattle in Iowa feed lots, he says, than a year ago. Since fewer farmers are feeding he believes that meat prices are bound to be higher in the spring. After remarking that feeding is the surest way to get the greatest margin out of the grain crop, he gives this assurance: "There is no reason for anxiety at this time over the feeder question since cattle purchased now will come out all right."

Mr. Business Man

Why not make your appeal for patronage through the columns of this newspaper? With every issue it carries its message into the homes of all the best people of this community. Don't blame the people for flocking to the store of your competitor. Tell them what you have to sell and if your prices are right you can get the business.

COMMUNITY WORK OF RED CROSS

Chapters Show Splendid Work for Soldiers and in Health Lines.

All over Illinois there is an increased interest manifest in the many activities of the American Red Cross. The membership of 203,438 persons in the 120 Chapters shows the far-reaching enthusiasm and the scope of the many activities which comprise the present Red Cross program.

Every part of the state is supporting the work for ex-service men, with five U. S. P. H. S. hospitals caring for ex-service men. This medical social service work is one of the principal activities in each of these hospitals, not only providing recreation, but in assisting the men to adjust their various difficulties.

There have been 10,400 ex-service men served by local Red Cross Chapters during the past year. In addition, 1,521 disabled men still in service have been helped in various ways. War veterans and their families number of 105,522 have been helped by Chapters, which $410,000 in this work. The national $100,000 fund is helping ex-service men and their families. Chapters are also helping in the work of the hospitals.

Trains, Summer Resorts and Country Homes Sold for Cash or Easy Payments.

The Red Cross is filling an equal need in every community where it has been developed. There are 2,542 nurses enrolled with the Red Cross in Illinois. These nurses are qualified according to Red Cross standards for service in war and emergency.

Forty-two Chapters are employing public health nurses for community work. During the past year 66 Red Cross public health nurses have been employed by various Chapters in the state. Their work has been in the schools, in teaching children health and sanitation, as well as reaching the homes of the community through personal visits.

Women in the state have shown great interest in the classes in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, which have been carried on in connection with the work of Red Cross Chapters. During the past year 2,541 persons have received certificates in the 319 classes which have been conducted.

The strong health program of the Red Cross, in addition to Home Nursing instructions, include classes in First Aid, Nutrition, and Life-Saving. Much of this work is along preventive lines and designed to prevent accidents or spread of contagion. There have been 3,583 children enrolled in the 155 Nutrition classes in connection with the work of the schools this past year.

In addition to this work in Nutrition, 448 women have completed courses in Food Selection. As the majority of these women were home makers, approximately that many families have received suggestions and instruction regarding food facts and correct diet.

There are 752 members of the Red Cross Life-Saving Corps in Illinois. Each of these persons have passed the examination and is trained in methods of resuscitating victims of drowning.

Also 84 certificates have been issued in the First Aid classes. These classes have been found of great value, not only in instructing men and women in the proper course to pursue in cases of emergency, but in the prevention of accident.

Work of the Junior Red Cross among the 850 Auxiliaries has been carried on by its membership of 210,123 children. They have aided in promoting health programs through the schools, visited hospitals, and helped to provide comforts and entertainment for disabled soldiers, as well as unfortunate children at home and abroad.

To aid in carrying out these many activities, and to increase the community usefulness of the local Red Cross Chapters, an opportunity will be given for renewing membership in the Red Cross during the Fifth Annual Roll Call. This opens on Armistice Day, November 11, and continues through Thanksgiving. Every membership dollar is an investment in community welfare and in relief activities, locally, nationally and internationally.

"Twins"

By Frank J. Dedie

In form and feature, face and limb, I grew so like my brother, That folks got taking me for him, And each for one another. It puzzled all our kith and kin, It reached an awful pitch, For one of us was born a twin, Yet not a soul knew "which."

When quite a little infant child My trouble did begin, For when I called for nourishment 'Twas given to the other twin; They gave "me" Godfrey's cordial When he kicked up a shine, And when his nose was troublesome They took to wiping mine.

One day, to make the matter worse, Before our names were fixed, As we were being washed by nurse, We got "completely mixed;" And thus, you see, by fate decree, Or rather nurse's whim, My brother John got christened "me" And I got christened "him."

This fatal likeness even dogged My footsteps when at school, For I was always being flogged 'Cause he turned out a fool. But once I had a sweet revenge, For something made me ill; The doctor came and gave poor Jack A black draught and a pill.

We both set up at last in trade, My prospects were but grim; The people bought my things, but paid The money all to him. And once, when he had had a drop, And broke a policeman's nob, They took me into custody, And fined me forty bot.

This fatal likeness turned the tide Of my domestic life, For somehow my intended bride Became my brother's wife. Year after year, and still the same Absurd mistakes went on; And when I died the neighbors came And buried brother John.
